

AWCC: More Scholarship Assistance Means More Progress For Our Colleagues, Clients And Our Country

When you ask anyone at Afghan Wireless about our Company's greatest achievement, they'll tell you we're proudest of how we champion, celebrate and support every one of our colleagues who strive to become better educated and improve their professional skills.

Recently, Afghan Wireless increased its scholarship assistance to our employees who are attending fourteen different Universities throughout Afghanistan.

And I'm proud to say that AWCC offers a broad range of internal programs which enable our colleagues to develop their educational and professional talents. Our in-house professional development program offers over fifty-two professional development courses on a broad range of subjects including, Competition Strategy, Effective Management, English, IT and Accountancy. In 2013, AWCC signed an agreement with Kardan University, located in Kabul, stating that the University will provide tuition discounts of up to thirty-percent to all AWCC employees.

The efforts of our partners at The Bayat Foundation to build schools and provide educational opportunities to thousands of Afghans has enjoyed tremendous success. Recently, the Foundation funded the expansion of educational programs at The Malalai Maternity Hospital, The Rahman Meena School, The Azadi School, and The Ministry of Public Health, Intermediate Medical Institute, Dental Department. You can learn more about how the Foundation's support of these institutions will give many more Afghans access to a better education and healthcare, by reading this article, available on the Bayat Foundation website:

We here at AWCC will always be the strongest supporters of our colleagues, and you, our customers, as you seek more knowledge about our world, and make your powerful contribution to building an Afghanistan that honors education, enlightenment and progress.

Until next time,

Ehsan
